Ethnic Minority Youths A total of 192 individuals have been supported through employment initiatives.

Out of this number, 110 underprivileged ethnic minority youths received training scholarships for a caregiver course, with 15 currently undergoing training. Upon completion of the course, they received certificates and were registered as certified caregivers. They were then offered long-term employment with a starting monthly salary of 12,000 THB and social security benefits. Additionally, the project hired 82 short-term caregivers who had completed caregiver training courses elsewhere but faced unfair employment conditions. They joined Buddy HomeCare and included 69 ethnic minority women and 3 ethnic minority men, with a starting monthly salary of 10,000 THB and social security benefits.

Dependent Elderly Care A total of 4,048 dependent elderly individuals received health care.

Among them, 211 were paying customers, while 4,357 were underprivileged elderly who received free services. This was facilitated through home visit mechanisms in collaboration with the Foundation for Older Persons' Development (FOPDEV), the Chiang Mai Home Care Volunteer Club (CHVC), and the Village Health Volunteers (VHV).

COVID-19 Impacted Individuals

Additionally, in the households of the 600 underprivileged elderly who received continuous health care from Buddy HomeCare, a total of 3,753 household members received emergency assistance during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The rise of rental companions

Social enterprise in Chiang Mai launches a 'Children for Rent' service in response to a growing ageing population

A recent post on Facebook read: "Buddy Home Care is starting a new service called Children for Rent. It is for seniors in need of companions. Maybe they want to go to the doctor, shop, run errands, or want someone to accompany them. Maybe they just want someone to be there. We charge only 350 baht per hour. Please book a time slot in advance. Currently, the service is available in Chiang Mai. PS: Proceeds will go to seniors charity."

With this post, the child rental service has gone viral. Since its launch in June, the number of followers has grown from 1,000 to 4,000, with the team behind the operation getting over 50 inquiries.

"Nowadays, most people don't want to have kids and will have to take care of themselves in old age. I think occasional support is still needed, hence the idea of children for rent. You can seek help without having to raise a child," said Tossawat Boonmar, general manager of Buddy Home Care, a social enterprise that provides in-home senior care in Chiang Mai.
